Second—The bonds would carry interest at only 5 per cent. Per samum, and could at present be sold at a premium, while the county would have to pay a per cent. Interest per annum on such money as it might borrow to carry on the county affairs.

Third—The issuing of bonds would prevent the leavy of the heavy maximum county tax for several years to come, which would be unavoidable if the bonds are not authorized.

Fourth—The issuing of the bonds would insure the continuance of necond public works, while giving employment to many men now idle.

EXPERT PHES.

There was considerable controversy over the bills of Dr. Ewing for expert opinion and examinations of two cases, when he had been called in by the coroner. It was the spirit of the court to sit down very heavily upon a miscellaneous holding of inquests and the employment of high priced medical talent where there was no need of it. The bills were allowed by the coroner, who will have to "look a little out" in the future.

The matter of settling with H. Dinwoodey et al., in their suit against the county was referred to Selectman Cahoon and Morris.

The claims of Leon Lacon and John B. Cummock were laid over.
